PIANO OF PEACE

With Piano of Peace, Jonathan Lucas Hauser steps into the public eye for the first time after years of intense, quiet work with a complete musical statement. It is a musical statement about the present and an appeal for humanity, dignity, and the power of respectful encounter. Trained as a mechanical engineer and now based in Salzburg, he has been involved in humanitarian work, travelled to Ukraine and Lebanon, and encountered people from a wide range of cultural backgrounds. These experiences shape his musical work, which carries within it a longing for peace. The result is a distinctive musical language that unfolds within tensions between closeness and distance, light and shadow, hope and upheaval. Musically, Jonathan Lucas Hauser moves between classical rootedness and a contemporary, atmospheric pop-influenced sound world. Echoes of Schubert and Chopin merge with a modern musical language. Calm, breathing passages that open up space stand alongside moments of intense drama. A Romantic density reminiscent of Tchaikovsky or Rachmaninoff combines with minimalist means to create an atmospheric breadth that resonates emotionally. This is precisely where the distinctive quality of Piano of Peace lies. The album does not aim for immediate effect, but unfolds its impact through inner tension, emotional breadth, and a respectful regard for the value of human life.
